ARCSIGHT OPENS NEW CORPORATE HEADQUARTERS TO ACCOMMODATE EXPLOSIVE GROWTH

SUNNYVALE, Calif. – June 1, 2004 - ArcSight, the leading provider of enterprise security information management software, announced the opening of its new corporate headquarters in Cupertino, California. The move was necessary to accommodate the company's growth in all areas, particularly sales and pre- and post-sales support, driven by ArcSight's profitability and market success since its founding in 2000. In addition to housing all the major corporate functions, the facility features an on-site customer briefing center, a dedicated space for enterprise customers to consult with ArcSight's security and product experts and view the latest product and technology from ArcSight.

"The inevitable separation between the leader and also ran's is now occurring in the Security Information Management market. In 2003 alone, ArcSight tripled its customer base, closed our first million dollar deal, and saw revenue growth of 600%. 2004 to date has shown similar results. The new headquarters will allow us to expand comfortably as we extend our market lead with the release of innovative products such as ArcSight 3.0, our award-winning security information management software," said Robert Shaw, Chairman and CEO, ArcSight. "In addition, our new headquarters provides ample room to continue to grow ArcSight's R&D team to bring new breakthrough features and products to market, meeting the ongoing needs of customers who demand cutting-edge functionality to counteract threats to their networks' security."

The new corporate headquarters, which are three times the size of ArcSight's previous offices, will house the company's research and development, customer support, information technology, professional services, marketing, sales management, finance, and executive staff. The new ArcSight headquarters is located at 5 Results Way in Cupertino, California. ArcSight's previous headquarters were in Sunnyvale, California.
